

We want your help in responding to the announcements and shaping how the Civic Movement responds. This survey, therefore, is a key component of Civic Voice's work for the coming year. We will also use the results to feed into the discussion at future Parliamentary meetings.

The survey will take between ten and fifteen minutes to complete. If you feel you need to elaborate further on any of the questions, please do so. Similarly, if you do not wish to answer any questions please leave them blank.

The survey is anonymous, but, if you want to stay involved in our discussion and debate and would be happy for Civic Voice to contact you, please complete the contact information questions.

Civic Voice will process your personal data in accordance with the Data Protection Act 2018.

All personal information will remain confidential.

The deadline is 8th August at 12 noon for responses.

Do you believe we have a housing crisis in the UK? Please explain your thinking.

How familiar are you with the Government's recent planning announcements?

Do you believe these planning reforms will effectively "get Britain building again" and deliver 1.5 million new homes by 2029?

How do you think we can achieve the 300,000 national housing target?

Chancellor Rachel Reeves said, "we need the private sector to build homes. We are not going to be in the business of building those homes directly." What do you think of this statement?

What are your thoughts on the media announcements declaring that these reforms are essentially a 'war on NIMBYs'? Who do you think they mean by this?

How do we ensure that civic societies and community organisations are viewed as part of the solution to local issues, rather than as a NIMBY movement? How can we challenge this thinking?

What are your thoughts on the new Government's commitment to appointing 300 new planning officers?

What do you think needs to happen to make housing schemes more acceptable to the general public?

Are you supportive of the new Government's plans for the 'grey belt' to help address housing need?

During the election, Angela Rayner promised that "new homes and new towns" built under a Labour government would have "only exemplary design with real character." Do you agree with this statement?

Thinking solely about your area, do you think that the houses being built are addressing local housing need?

If training was available by Civic Voice to help improve your understanding of design, what would you want to see covered?

Would you be interested in attending further discussions to help shape a Civic Voice response to the National Planning Policy Framework consultation when it is published?

Finally, when thinking about new housing in your local area, what one word would you use to describe it?
